No. 168.—The following resolution of the Government of India is republished :—

DEPARTMENT OF INDUSTRIES.

Simla, the 1st May 1922.

No. L-910.—The Government of India have had under consideration for some time the question of the preparation of index-numbers designed to measure the cost of living for industrial workers in India. The publication of such index-numbers in other countries was originally undertaken by statisticians who had mainly an academic interest in the subject. The great fluctuations in prices which began in 1914 and have continued since led to the use of index-numbers as a basis for the fixation of wages. For example, in Great Britain at the present time, the wages of over three millions of workers depend directly on an index-number issued monthly by the British Ministry of Labour. This use of the index number is not free from danger, but there is little doubt that, where employers and workers can be induced to accept an index-number as a basis for a sliding scale of wages, the result is a great decrease in industrial unrest. Wages are thus regulated automatically by movements in prices, and although the correspondence can never be exact, the adjustment provided proves sufficiently accurate to remove one of the chief causes of strife.

2. In many of the strikes which have occurred in India during the last three years, and more especially in those which marked the second half of 1920, the question of the correlation of wages and prices was prominent. Workers asserted that the purchasing power of their wages had fallen, and claimed that large increases were necessary to bring their wages up to pre-war standards. Employers were ready as a rule to concede the principle that the workers should not be placed in an unfavourable position in comparison with previous years, but they disputed the assertions made by the workers, and considered that the increases they offered, or had already given, were adequate. Some employers made endeavours at their own expense, to calculate the rise in the cost of living for their workers, and Government, in some instances based the increases they gave to their own staff upon similar investigations. But these inquiries were based on somewhat scanty material. Naturally also the results of such ad hoc investigations did not inspire the same confidence as an index-number, constructed regularly from month to month and year to year, and without reference to particular disputes, usually receives. These considerations led the Government of India to an examination of the possibility of constructing periodic index-numbers designed to measure movements in the cost of living of the industrial classes throughout India. They recognized that the index numbers already published could not be adapted to this purpose.

3. The question was examined in detail at a conference held in Delhi in January 1921, at which the various issues of Government had the assistance of Mr. F. H. Mcleod, C.B., formerly Director of Labour Statistics in the Board of Trade and Chairman of the British Industrial Court, Dr. Gilbert Slater, Professor of Economics in the University of Madras and Mr. A. R. Burnett-Hurst, Professor of Economics in the Muir Central College, Allahabad. The chief difficulty in the preparation of a satisfactory scheme was the absence of any estimate of the comparative expenditure of the industrial workers on different items that could be regarded as even moderately correct. The basis for calculating such expenditure is usually furnished by the collection of budgets showing the actual expenditure for typical families from week to week or month to month. But no budgets on which reliance could be placed were then available. An alternative method of assessing the comparative expenditure is to estimate the exports, imports and production of different commodities for a particular area, and thus arrive at the average quantity consumed by each inhabitant of that area. It will be evident that, if an index-number based on the latter method is to be even approximately accurate, the average consumption for the inhabitants of the area concerned must not differ essentially from the average consumption for the particular class of inhabitants, i.e., industrial workers, to whom the index-number is designed to refer. Moreover, the only area for which it is possible to obtain statistics of exports, imports and production is India as a whole. So that an index number for India or for any part of India constructed on these lines is open to criticism on two grounds, apart from any inherent errors in the statistics used. In the first place, it assumes that the differences between one province and another are not such as to vitiate the application of averages based on all-India figures to particular industrial centres. Secondly, it ignores differences between the mode of living of the industrial classes and that of the population of India as a whole.

4. The Government of India thus reached the conclusion that, while the method discussed above afforded the only means of constructing an index number with the material already available, no reliance could be placed on index numbers so constructed until they had been checked by the collection of family budgets. Local Governments were accordingly addressed in March 1921. The suggestion was then made that index-numbers should be constructed on the basis of estimates of national export, import and production, checked by an early collection of family budgets. The Government of India had the hope that it might ultimately be possible to construct an index number which would measure, with some degree of accuracy, movements in the cost of living for the industrial classes in India. At the same time, they suggested that particular attention should be directed towards obtaining accurate statistics of retail prices. Errors in the calculation of the quantities of particular commodities entering into the construction of an index number are of minor importance compared with errors in the prices applied to these commodities. For formæ, unless they are very large, do not produce serious errors in the final result; the latter, if they are considerable, destroy completely the value of any index-number based upon them.

5. The proposals made by the Government of India were accepted by the majority of Local Governments, and in several important centres investigations designed to secure accurate figures of the comparative consumption of industrial workers have been set on foot. These investigations have not yet been completed, but there is reason to hope that they will furnish material which, in addition to providing a basis for the construction of index numbers, will throw valuable light on the conditions of life and labour in centres of industry. An index number is now regularly published in Bombay, and the Government of India hope that other provinces will be in a position, when the necessary statistics have been collected, to publish figures that will secure acceptance. Local Governments will be free to follow their own policy in this matter. The Government of India trust that, in view of the importance of the subject, the public will accord all necessary encouragement and assistance to those who have undertaken the work.

6. At the same time, the Government of India have decided that the construction of an all-India index figure should not be undertaken at the present time. As has already been mentioned, wide differences exist between province and province, and without the collection, under conditions that will secure accuracy, of a large mass of statistical matter culled from typical family budgets from every part of India, it will not be safe to assume that the averages possess the merit of reliability. Moreover, there is no doubt that an index-number constructed on the basis of a restricted area such as a province or an industrial district, where the mode of living of the community is fairly standardised will inspire much greater confidence among employers, workers and the general public. Thus, while the preparation of an all-India figure would not be without interest, or altogether without utility to those dealing with industrial problems, the Government of India think that it will be wiser to postpone its construction at present. Accurate budgets and retail price statistics are not yet available for all parts of India. Provincial and local index-numbers have yet to establish themselves in public confidence. When the existing difficulties have disappeared and the leading Local Governments are in a position to publish index figures of recognised accuracy, it may be possible to build up on these an all-India figure that will command general support.

Acting Secretary to Government.

The first term is from July to December and the second term is from January to April, the Christmas vacation extending for two weeks. The Government Technical Examinations in Commerce are held towards the end of April every year, and the school closes immediately after in May, for two months for the summer vacation, and re-opens in July, when the school year and the course for all the classes begin. Those who wish to begin the study of commercial subjects and to join the school will, therefore, be admitted only in July every year: and such students must join early in July, at least before the 25th of that month.

The fee for Typewriting is Rs. 12 per term, payable in three instalments of Rs. 4 each. The same rate of fee is charged for each of the grades in a subject.

Subjects and classes.—Instruction is given in the following six commercial subjects and students are prepared for the Government Technical Examinations in these subjects up to the highest grade in each:—

1. Book-keeping and Accountancy (including auditing).
2. Theory and Practice of Commerce or Commercial Law and Practice.
3. Banking and Political Economy.
4. Commercial Geography and History.
5. Shorthand.
6. Typewriting.

Classes are held for the elementary grade only in Shorthand and Typewriting, the course for which is one year. In all other subjects, students are prepared for the intermediate grade at the end of the first year's course. The course for the intermediate grade in each of the six subjects is ordinarily one year, and it takes another year for the advanced course.

(b) Where you do not keep your accounts in such a form, you must file a statement showing how you arrive at the taxable profits, i.e., showing details of the gross receipts and of the expenditure you propose to set against those receipts. No deductions are permissible on account of—

(i) Property owned and occupied by the owner of a business for the purposes of the business;
(ii) Additions to or alterations, extensions, or improvements of any of the assets of the business;
(iii) Interest on the capital of the proprietors or partners of the business;
(iv) Bad debts not actually written off in the accounts;
(v) Losses sustained in previous years;

If you have included any such sums in your expenditure in your books, you must exclude them from the expenditure permissible for the purpose of arriving at your taxable profits.

Note 6.—The income, profits or gains shall be computed after making allowance for any expenditure (not being in the nature of capital expenditure) incurred solely for the purposes of such profession or vocation, provided that no allowance is made on account of any of your personal expenses. Professional fees received by you in any part of India (whether within British India or not) must be included by you in your receipts.

Note 7.—Income-tax chargeable on the profits of companies is paid by the companies, so that the dividends which shareholders receive represent the net amount remaining after income-tax has been paid. The amount of income-tax paid upon those dividends must be added to the dividends received, and the gross amount arrived at should be entered in column 2 of the statement.

If the rate of tax applicable to your total income is less than the rate at which tax has been paid upon your dividends, you may, by attaching the company's certificate received with the dividends, have the excess collected on your dividends from the company set against the tax payable by you on your other income instead of having to apply separately for a refund.

Note 8.—Agricultural income from land not paying land revenue or local rates to an authority in British India should be included under this head.

Note 9.—Deductions from total income can only be made for insurance premia in respect of insurance on your own life or on the life of your wife, or in respect of a contract for a deferred annuity on your own life or on the life of your wife. No deduction is permissible in the case of any other form of insurance except in the case of Hindu undivided families where deductions are permissible on account of premia paid in respect of insurance on the life of any male member of the family or of his wife. 23. In the case of income derived in part from agriculture and in part from business no assessee shall be entitled to deduct from such income the market value of any agricultural produce raised by him or received by him as rent in kind which he has utilised as raw material for the purposes of his business or the sale receipts of which are included in the accounts of his business. The balance of such income shall be deemed to be income derived from the business and no further deduction shall be made therefrom in respect of any expenditure incurred by the assessee as cultivator or receiver of rent in kind.

24. For the purposes of rule 23 "market value" shall be deemed to be :—

(a) where agricultural produce is ordinarily sold in the market in its raw state, or after application to it of any process ordinarily employed by a cultivator or receiver of rent in kind to render it fit to be taken to market, the value calculated according to the average price at which it has been so sold during the year previous to that in which the assessment is made ;

25. In the case of Life Assurance Companies incorporated in British India, whose profits are periodically ascertained by actuarial valuation, the income, profits and gains of the Life Assurance Business shall be the average annual net profits disclosed by the last preceding valuation, provided that any deductions made from the gross income in arriving at the actuarial valuation which are not admissible for the purpose of income-tax assessment, and any Indian income-tax deducted from or paid on income derived from investments before such income is received, shall be added to the net profits disclosed by the valuation.

26. Rule 25 shall apply also to the determination of the income, profits and gains derived from the annuity and capital redemption business of life assurance companies, the profits of which can be ascertained from the results of an actuarial valuation.

27. If the Indian income-tax deducted from interest on the investments of a company exceeds the tax on the income, profits and gains thus calculated, a refund may be permitted of the amount by which the deduction from interest on investments exceeds the tax payable on such income, profits and gains.

28. In the case of other classes of insurance business (fire, marine, motor car, burglary, etc.), of a company incorporated in British India, the income, profits or gains shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of the Act, subject to the allowance specified in the rule next following.

If in the ordinary accounts of any insurance business other than Life Assurance, Annuity, or Capital Redemption Business carried on by an Insurance Company any amount is actually charged against the receipts for the sole purpose of forming a reserve to meet outstanding liabilities or unexpired risk in respect of policies which have been issued (including risk of exceptional losses) and is not used for any other purpose such amount may be treated as expenditure incurred solely for the purpose of earning the profits of the business.

30. Any amount either written off in the accounts or through the Actuarial Valuation Balance Sheet to meet depreciation of, or loss on, securities or other assets, or which is carried to a reserve fund formed for that sole purpose and not used for any other purpose, may be treated as expenditure incurred solely for the purpose of earning the profits of the business. Any sums taken credit for in the accounts or Actuarial Valuation Balance Sheet on account of appreciation of or gains on the securities or other assets shall be deemed to be income chargeable to tax, subject always to deduction of such portion thereof as has been otherwise taken into account in calculating the income, profits or gains.

31. The income, profits and gains of companies carrying on Dividing Society or Assessment business shall be taken at 15 per cent of the premium income in the previous year and, in the case of non-resident companies, at 15 per cent of the Indian premium income in the previous year.

32. Notwithstanding anything contained in rules 25 to 31, the total income, however, of an insurance company carrying on more than one class of business shall be determined by the aggregate income from all classes of business.

33. In any case in which the Income-tax Officer is of opinion that the actual amount of the income, profits or gains accruing or arising to any person residing out of British India whether directly or indirectly through or from any business connection in British India cannot be ascertained, the amount of such income, profits or gains for the purposes of assessment to income-tax may be calculated on such percentage of the turnover so accruing or arising as the Income-tax Officer may consider to be reasonable, or on an amount which bears the same proportion to the total profits of the business of such person (such profits being computed in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act) as the receipts so accruing or arising bear to the total receipts of the business, or in such other manner as the Income-tax Officer may deem suitable.

34. The profits derived from any business carried on in the manner referred to in section 42 (f) of the Act may be determined for the purposes of assessment to income-tax according to the preceding rule.

35. The total income of the Indian branches of non-resident insurance companies (Life, Marine, Fire, Accident, Burglary, Fidelity Guarantee, etc.), in the absence of more reliable data, may be deemed to be the proportion of the total income, profits or gains, of the companies, corresponding to the proportion which their Indian premium income bears to their total premium income.

TENDERS FOR THE HIRING OUT OF CALVES TO THE KING INSTITUTE, GUINDY, SAIDAPET, MADRAS.

Notice is hereby given that sealed tenders will be received up to 3 p.m. precisely on Wednesday the 14th June 1922, by the Director, King Institute of Preventive Medicine, Guindy, at his office for the supply of calves on hire for the manufacture of vaccine lymph as noted in the schedule hereto. Not less than two tenderers will be selected and required to supply about 100 calves each, a month.

Tenders will be opened precisely at 3 p.m., by the Director, King Institute, at his office at Guindy in the presence of those tenderers who may choose to attend.

Tenders should be superscribed "Tenders for the hiring of calves." Each tender must contain not only the rate of hire but also the total hire value of the supply.

Each tender must be accompanied by a deposit in currency notes only as earnest money of the amounts noted in the schedule. This deposit will be returned to unsuccessful tenderers immediately or one month after, and to the successful tenderers as soon as they have satisfactorily executed their contract bond.

No person making a tender shall be allowed to withdraw it within thirty days from the date thereof and, in the event of his so doing, his earnest money deposit shall be forfeited to Government.

The earnest money deposit of successful tenderers will be liable to forfeiture, if they fail to execute the bond binding them to supply, the cost of stamp being borne by the contractors executing it. They should also furnish security in cash or Government promissory notes to the extent mentioned in the schedule within one week from the date of the acceptance of the tender being made known to them.

The supplies should begin from 1st July 1922 and be made for one year from that date.

No advance of cash will be made to the contractors. Payment of hire in respect of the accepted calves will be made as soon after their acceptance, as possible.

It shall be optional with the Director of the King Institute to indent for a larger or smaller number of calves than those mentioned in the schedule, and to suspend supplies as and whenever necessary during the period of contract.

The contract must not be sub-let.

The Director reserves to himself the right of rejecting any tender without assigning any reason for so doing.

In case the contractors after taking the contract be not willing to supply as per their agreement they shall give at least one month's notice and shall forfeit the security to Government. In case of failure to supply calves on the dates required by the Director the contractors shall be fined an amount fixed by the Director which will be deducted from the security. The contractors will also be bound to make good to Government any loss which may arise from their withdrawal or failure. In the event of the Director having to purchase or hire out the calves specified in the contract locally at higher rates than those contracted for, the excess price shall be deducted from the other monies due to contractors or the amount of security, without the contract being cancelled by Government.

No calves shall be supplied to the Institute except on the authority of the Director or some responsible officer authorized by him in this behalf.

The calves hired out will be released after the vaccine operations thereon have been carried out and when no longer required. In the event of any casualty occurring among the accepted calves during their period of detention at the Institute, the Institute will indemnify the contractor at the rate of Re. 1-2-0 a calf.

The respective contractors should remove the dead calves within 24 hours after they are released. Calves not so removed will be disposed of by private sale or otherwise and the amount thus realized less departmental expenses incurred will be paid to the owners. The contractors cannot claim this amount as a matter of right.

Typed forms of tenders can be had on application to the Manager at the office of the King Institute, Guindy.
